Description

A striking Edwardian six-light chandelier crafted entirely from hand-blown and finely moulded glass, embodying the refined elegance of the early 18th-century Georgian style design. The chandelier features a central baluster stem composed of ribbed glass spheres. Six gracefully glass arms extend outward, supporting wide drip pans and candle sconces, all executed in matching rib-moulded glass. The piece is crowned with a circular top dish and finished with a delicate swirled finial, creating perfect symmetry and balance.

This chandelier is an object designed not only to illuminate but to enchant with its shimmering play of reflection and form. A magnificent statement piece, ideal for a dining room, drawing room, or grand hallway.
