Description

A graceful Georgian revolving lazy Susan, crafted from exceptional cut glass, with a broad circular tray neatly worked in concentric bands of fine slices and floral garland decoration. The edge is gently scalloped, offering a subtle movement to the profile, while the surface is crisply cut to capture and reflect light with quiet, steady brilliance.

Raised on a cut bell shaped pedestal foot, typically mounted on a concealed turning mechanism, the piece would have formed the heart of the dining table, designed to rotate elegantly for shared dishes, sweets, or condiments.
